

GERRY MEN HAVE RUNAWAY GIRL

Little Susie McGirr, Who Disappeared from Home, Is Under Lock and Key in the Rooms of the Children's Society.

FATHER NOT PERMITTED TO VISIT HER THERE.

Told He Cannot See Her Until She Is Arraigned in Court and Even Denied Privilege of Sending Her Clothing.

Little Susie McGirr who disappeared from her home, No. 42 West Twenty-ninth street, has been found. The child is in the custody of the Children's Society, and the best heart-broken father, who spent two nights in search of his little one, is able to get from the man who guards the wicket of the society rooms that he may see his daughter when she is arraigned in court on Wednesday.

Where was the child found? Where has she been? Is she well? Does she fret to come home?

All these questions have been asked by the father and in reply he has been told that if he desires to see the child he may do so when she is taken to court.

The child's mother is dead, and having nowhere to keep her, Patrick McGirr, who works in the railroad yards at Eleventh avenue and Thirtieth street, placed Susie, who is eight years old, with Mrs. Mary Crowe on board. He says Mrs. Crowe has been more like a mother than anything else to the child.

Her Fife Innocent Ones.

A few days ago Mrs. Crowe caught Susie in a fib. Her imagination is fertile and once she imagines anything she believes it. Sometimes she says her dollie has been talking to her. Again she has seen a big man with a red face in the other room. These childish fancies Mrs. Crowe desired to stop.

"Susie," said she on Friday, "if you do not stop telling me stories I will take you to Father Kinney and have him talk to you. Don't you know it is wrong?"

The threat that the priest of the parish where Susie attended school would be called in to talk to her was too much and Susie left home. She failed to come back in the evening and a general alarm was sent out for her. Mrs. Crowe continued her search and finally met a policeman, who advised her to see if the Children's Society had the child. She went to the place on Saturday night and could obtain no satisfaction.

She says the persons at the rooms would not ease her mind even by telling her that the child was there, but he couldn't see her until the next day, Sunday. It was late and the father thought it was some rule of the institution. On Sunday, knowing the child was dead only in a little school room when she went away, he called at the place with a change of clothing and a clean frock. Then it was the majority of the society was impressed upon the man. He was informed that he could not see his daughter until the next day. He must look behind iron bars and keep her from me? Susie," said McGirr. "What could that little thing do that must look her behind iron bars and keep her from me? Sure the child didn't know what she was doing when she ran away from home."

"Well, you can't see her till you see her in court. That's all there is to it," was the reply, and McGirr walked out into the air with his head swimming.

Has a No Alternative.

"What can I do?" said he to-day. "Take a sled and batter down the doors? They'd only arrest me. I have no money or the father of a poor man and the society has my child, and if I even spoke loudly or spoke my mind they'd have me arrested. I suppose a reporter of the Evening World called at the society's rooms."

"No, he can't see her till she is taken into court, and that is all there is about it," said the man who stands between the public and the mysteries of the Children's Society.

STABS MAN WHO SAID HE STOLE

Emanuel Sloss Seriously Wounds His Landlord, Who Accused Him of Keeping $5 Belonging to the Latter's Son.

Emanuel Dobesch, thirty-four years old, of No. 227 East Seventy-third street, lies in the Presbyterian Hospital to-day suffering from a knife wound in the abdomen, and Emanuel Sloss, thirty-four years old, of the same address, is a prisoner in the East Sixty-seventh street station as the result of an argument over an unpaid board bill and a missing five-dollar note.

Dobesch, who is married and has a son fifteen years old, rents one or two rooms in his flat, the boarders being Sloss and Antonio Sevel. Sloss has been out of work for some time and did not pay his board bill last week. Young Dobesch lost a $5 bill and when Sloss arrived home early this morning he displayed a bill of that denomination and was promptly accused of having stolen the one belonging to the boy. This and an argument over the board bill brought on a fight, and Sloss pulled a knife and stabbed Dobesch in the abdomen. Despite the wound Dobesch managed to pick up the leg of a chair and with it beat Sloss over the head. The men then ran into the hall and Dobesch fell bleeding.

Sloss attempted to escape, but his way was blocked by Mrs. Farrell, the janitress, who weighs over 200 pounds. She stood in the doorway and refused to move until the police arrived. When the police came an ambulance was summoned from the Presbyterian Hospital and both men were taken there. After Sloss had the wounds in his head attended to he was taken to the East Sixty-seventh Street Station to await the result of Dobesch's injuries.

CALL EASTMOND TO COURT

Man Who Was Knocked Down Says He Was Driving Too Fast.

Water Registrar Eastmond appeared to-day in the Adams Street Court, Brooklyn, to answer a summons issued against him for driving a horse on a crowded thoroughfare at the rate of six miles an hour.

While turning the corner of Schermerhorn and Court streets, Eastmond, driving in a runaway, knocked down William E. Seward. Two of Seward's ribs were fractured.

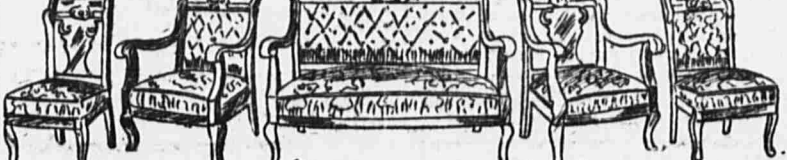

Eastmond pleaded that under the law he had a right to go eight miles an hour. Magistrate Dooley indicated that he thought Eastmond's contentions were well-founded, but reserved decision for a few days.

COURTS OPEN FOR FALL TERM

County Court-House Is Better Lighted than Ever and Many Rooms Redecorated—Cases Indicate a Busy Session.

All the special and trial terms of the Supreme and City Courts, and also of the Surrogate's Court, opened up for business to-day, after the summer vacation. The interior of the County Court-house is much improved by the painting of the walls, and the cleaning of the large skylights in the roof, which adds largely to the lighting of the corridors. Many of the court-rooms also have been redecorated and renovated.

Justice Barrett presided in Special Term, Part I, the other special terms being presided over by Justices Levensitt, Scott, Davis, Goldersleeve and McCull. Justice Gorman, Dugre, MacLean, Fitzgerald, John, and Amend, Truax and Greenbaum presided in the various trial terms.

Surrogate Thomas disposed of several applications to fix dates for the trial of will contests in the Surrogate's Court, and also set the interior of the County Court-house in much improved by the painting of the walls, and the cleaning of the large skylights in the roof, which adds largely to the lighting of the corridors. Many of the court-rooms also have been redecorated and renovated.
